BY CHARSTON & NORMAN 127 THAMES STREET.

SATURDAY MORNING, NOV. 30, 1860

The Court of Common Pleas was engaged all of Wednesday, mail, a late hour of the evening, in the trial of the Criminal Docket. A saldier from Fort Adams was convicted of an assault on Officer Hazard; and two men were convicted of attacking and breaking the windows of a house in Tiverion. The Indicatent of the State vs. Charles L. Stanheye, for an olleged assault on Officer Watson, was also tried. The facts in this case, which originated during the severity of the Inquisition, last summer are substantially these. Mr. Stanbope is Clerk of the steamer Perry, and when that best arrived from Providence one evening during the most busy part of the erason, a drayman by the name of Clarke, went on board the boat for the purpose of taking freight out ; he disobeyed Mr-Stanhope's orders, in some manner, and the latter ordered him on shore. He become implent, and Mr. Stanhope took hold of him, and, in the course of the saude of putting him on; shore, struck him several times. Just as they were at the gang-way, or on the plank leading to the wharf, Officer Watson stepped on board and comunited pence, at the same time fourishing his cane and seizing Mr. Stanhope by his arm. Stanhope ordered Officer Watson on shore, and the latter swere that the former threatened to split his head open with the gang-way bar. These are substantially the facts in the case. The cause was submitted to the Jury, and after being out some time. they came into Court for further instruction upon a paint on which they disagreed. After being again addressed by Judge Staples they retired, and, remaining out some time, they were cent for by the Court and, after stating that they were anable to agree, the Court took the papers from them. The Attorney General promptly entered a nol, pros. on the Indictment, and Judge Staples remarked that he thought the Attorney had pursued a very proper course; the Judge and Attorney General thus virtually admitting that the case ought never to have gone to the Grand Jury, or been brought into court.

at Our renders will all on pleased with the following amounts article, on "repictual rappings" from the pen of enr valued friend, Major Patten. ET MALIOR G. W. PATTER, U. S. A.,

Mr. Romore—
Byery body has heard of the rappings in Rochester, and subsequently in the city of New York; but very few of your readers, I Imagine, are aware of the fact that similar exhibitions of scound are at present exciting the attention of many of the good citizens of Providence. in other words tho rappers who gaivanized half of the city of New York bave "appeared" as, of course, in duty bound, in order to electrily halt of the people of Providence .-Having occasion to visit the latter named city, some days since and having nothing wherewith to amuse invisit, as evening approached, I determined to enquire my way to the " whereabout" of the Spirita." Several houses were pointed out to me where the phenomena could be observed, and in regard to each of which one

"could a tale infinite. Where elightest word would harrow up the acel."
Fortunately, the name of an individual, with whom I was acquainted some years since, was on the list of operators and I determined all once to call at the house of the lady, introduce myself as a friend of other days, and request; if it was agrecable on all sides, an introduction to her physical as well as her spiritual companions.

Accordingly, I "rapped" at the door itopened-or, rather, I should say it was opened, as I would not have it understood, by any means, get, that the door opened itself. A gentleman, whom I subsequently ascertained to be Mr. P., a well-known poet and scholar, stand before me, in a hall dimly lighted.

Is Mrs. W. in ?" said L. "She is," replied Mr. P. "Can I see ber ?" "Walk through this way, Sir.h Following my guide, who opened a doorat the left, I found myself at once in the presence. There was no lamp in the more but by the light of a few rays which had wandered in, probably like myself, out of curiosity, from the entry. I discovered I was among "much people." A death-like silence prevailed, and as my eyes became somewhat more accustomed to " the shades." I discov cred in the centre of the room, a small stand, around which were scated, with their right hands resting on the top of the stand or table, three individuals; many sair lineses, the meany sair lines for many sair lines are many sair lines are many sair lines are many sair lines are many property of the many sair lines are m

Gentlemen, I must request that you will keep perfeetly silent-I cannot hear the answers," Impelled by curlouity to get as near as possible to the scene of operation, I took possession of a chair politely resigned to me by one of the party, and placing it close to the fair operator, revied my own gloved hand on the table, thus con necting myself, as it were, with the operating party. In order to have a perfeet understanding of the matter, it must be premised that what is termed a "medium" is necessary, in order to carry on a successful operation. This medium may be either a male or female, but he or she must possess certain magnetising qualities, which can only be ascertained by practical experience. The "spirits." of course, are the judges when the propor medium is selected, since they will readily respond if they are pleased with the medium; and, if not, they signify heir dispatisfaction by a rigid silence. In the present instance the "spirits" were perfectly satisfied with the individnal through whom they were made manufest. She was a young girl of about fourteen summers ; very fair at all events, I thought her so, for her name was " Mary." Now we will proceed. The hand of the medium-that is Mary's hand-rested upon the table, next was the hand of a gentleman who came to enquire for his guardian spirit :

music of her tones broke the awful sileace of the chamber. " Is this gentleman's grandian spirit

"Spirit, ie it difficult for you to rap when Mr. H's hand is on the table ?" A very slight jar.

" Mr. H., please take your hand from the table, the spirit cannot rap while it in there."

The announcement of this intelligence seemed to give much satisfaction to all present, and I felt so much loss est that I requested the operator to quire if I was favored by any particalar guardianship. She complied with my request, but could get no satisfactory answer. She attributed the circumstance to the lack of electricity in room, it being warm and crowded; but said if I would go into the opposite room, where there was no light, and he companied by herself and the medicin, "Mary," the experiment would undoub edly succeed. Nothing lath, I took up the charmed stand, and, preceded by the fair hostess and the fairer medium, entered the rosm opposite where, 🕏 ing the door, we found ourselves oped in Chamerian darkness. The sound shrilled on my nerves like a shock of electricity. Reader, imagine my sit nation. There I was in that dark cold room alone. Oh, no l not alone; but in company with three wierd sisters, and one of them a "spirit !" In a mo ment, a shudder ran through my frame, (which must be attributed, however, to the cold) and then, did I call for the alphabet? No, I was quite saussied, and did not care about pursting the experiment further, at present. Did I ask for assistance ? No, there was enough asristance in the room already. But, reader, I will tell you what I dill ask for; I asked that the door might be opened, being actuated by a feeling which predominated at that critical period, to have a little more light on the subject. And the door was opened, and the light was brought, and it discovered the overturned stand, and it shone with a sickly glare on the pale features and white dress of the arch enchantress, and over the pretty "medium," who stood most provokingly undismayed, with her small white hand resting upon the edge of the prostrated tables

"Are you satisfied, Mr. P ?"

"Yes, for the present, parfectly," And we passed to the next room, where the company, which consisted of some eighteen personages, were awaiting the result of our labors.

"Oh, it has succeeded admirably." said one of tria,

" Yes," replied I, the manifestations were unequivocal, rappings painfully distinct, and - the table was kicked over."

At this announcement much interest was manifested, and I left the house just as preparations were being made to exercise the disembodied spirit of Edgar

And now, Mr. Editor, your readers A slight crackling sound seemed to of course, will enquire if I belove aff manate from the centre of the stand, this! Well, let me consider, for I hate to commit myself, and I hate to get up theories and I hate to express an opinion on a subject where " Doctors disagree." But the main facte, as reated, can be vouched for, and such conclusions may be drawn therefrom, as your readers see fit to deduce. The fact of "the rappings" eannot be doubted, for I heard them. A table was overtomed-I witnessed the fact. These are the facts, but how to account for them is another question. quite willing to favor the public with and visiting the grave of the illustria dier spirit of Mr. — here ?" The news is briefly reported. A renewed misunderstanding between Prossin and Austria is sporten of as "confirmed." We have had no previous information of that character. Our last advices were of an agreement between these powers for the "protection" of Hesse Cassel

Further reports are that "all Germany is arming"-that "Austria and Bavaria are in arms"-and that some Prussian troops who had possession of the village of Byoizell, fired upon the Anetrian soldiers as they marched into itthat the fire was returned, and the Prussians were driven out of the place.-There were wounded on both sides.

The papers still insist that France England and Russic are endeavoring to mediate in the officies of Germany. In Vienna, war, if is said, is spoken of ar certain.

The irritation of the English about the recent action of the Pope, in the matter of Romish bishops, is said to be subsidieg.

WASHING, ILEACHING AND CLEANSING PLUID, the greatest laker saving pricely yet discovered. By its use, wishing, and not one quarter the labor is required to do the washing of a family.

The Floid is a chemical compound of sufficient strength to extract all foreign substances from the cloth, by rimply boiling a small quantity of it with the clother, and without the slightest tojury, to the more delicate fabric.

The expecte is not more than that of the scap ordinarily aded, and besides this it will be seen that the great wear and tract of clothing consequent upon the old method of hard cubing upon a board, and the use of the pounding barrel, is wholly avoided, and a minutear serving is thus made. It is emphatically the funale's friend.
